This conference will provide you with a better understanding of attachment and trauma based approaches to working with children and young people in a variety of settings from education to the youth justice system.

We'll discuss behaviour that traumatic experience and poor attachment induces and what this might look like in a classroom, in the home and elsewhere, as well as how the wrong approach and the wrong time exacerbates such behaviour. Lastly, we will look at what trauma informed responses look like and what to do to start responding to these kids more effectively.

You'll gain plenty of examples of how applying the TRM can help and how you can embed it across your organisation. As well as the opportunity to hear key experts in working with children and young people who are enthusiastic and brilliant speakers too!

We do hope you will join us!
