Helping Children & Young People Who Experience Trauma

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

Recent studies estimate two-thirds of children and young people will have experienced trauma before the age of 16. This conference is designed to provide professionals working with trauma experienced children and young people in education, social care and health settings with a deeper understanding in this area. The programme is jam-packed with knowledge updates, ideas and most importantly practical strategies so you can best support the children and young people you work with. We do hope you will join us!
